Blogs are becoming increasingly popular in education. Teachers use them for their own reflection and learning, and also as another tool to aid with the teaching and learning of literacy. You can contribute from anywhere, anytime and anyplace.

Contributing to the George Brothers Blog

As an example these notes will lead you through contributing to the George Brothers Blog. This is a Blog that has been set up to track the progress of Creative and Curious George as they travel around schools learning about Web 2.0.
